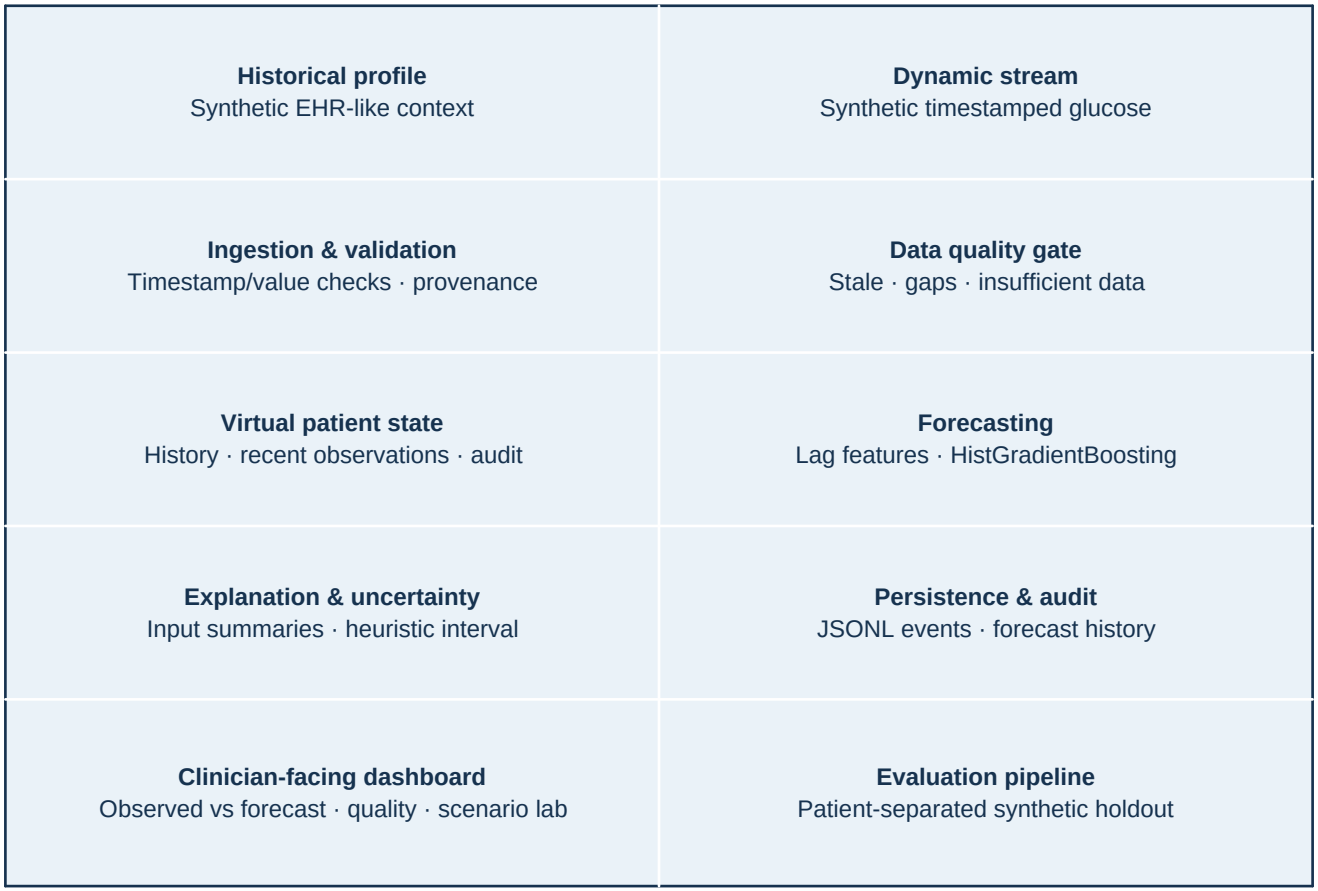
GlucoTwin Architecture

Research proof of concept · synthetic demonstration data only



Flow: both data streams are validated before state update. Accepted observations update the virtual state and clear the previous forecast. A forecast is generated only when sufficient recent observations are available. The dashboard distinguishes observations from predictions and shows quality warnings.

Boundary: historical context is shown in state/dashboard but is not a model feature in this version. No real patient data, device connection, or clinical validation is included.